

CONDITIONER SPRAY

- Pantene Pro V Conditioner “Moisturizing” or “Hydrating”
- And a spray bottle.

Use warm water and mix about 10-20% by volume the Pantene Pro V CONDITIONER (not the shampoo) to about 80-90% plain water. You’re gonna have to shake the mix VERY much to dissolve the conditioner. It’s gonna be a whitish mix you can’t see through. Spray that on/into a dry coat for a day or two, rub it in. You don’t have to do it again until or unless the coat gets dull, or dandruffy again. After a while the dog will get sort of waxy, then you’d use a warm wet rag to remove accumulated Pantene. My dog Ajax needs that “clarifying” once a month or so.

- Soothing to itchy skin
- Helps resolve dog dandruff
- “Bath in a bottle”
- Dry Skin Treatment
- Excellent and Inexpensive. Better than some medicine.

3 Ways to Use This Pantene Conditioner Spray

- For Beautification/Better Scent/Healthier Coat:
- Simply mist sparingly on the coat lightly and pat in.
- For Dry Skin and Itching (Allergies, Atopy, Pruritis)
- Spray on generously, rub into coat with hands, try and make skin contact as much as possible. Use a dry washcloth or hand towel to wipe some off, going WITH the lay of the hair to remove about half of what you’ve put on. Or think of it this way, you only want to remove enough so as to NOT stain your furniture. Pantene Pro-V Conditioner DOES absorb and dry off pretty well.
- For Actual “Bath in a Bottle”
- Spray on generously, and rub through the coat. Try and saturate (and tousle) the coat with your fingers like a scalp massage to lift dirt, dust, dandruff, etc. This will be DIFFICULT to impossible on long haired dogs. Then, using a WET (just short of drippy) washcloth, rub out the Conditioner Spray. Again, you’re NOT trying to remove ALL of it.

Relevance to your dog: Medically Indicated | Very high | High | Elective